Community meeting for South Coast residents affected by the Woolsey fire

VENTURA, Calif - The County of Ventura will provide fire recovery information at a community meeting for Ventura County residents on the South Coast who have been affected by the Woolsey Fire. The meeting will take place:

Monday, November 19, 6:30 p.m.
Ventura County Fire Station 56
11855 Pacific Coast Highway, Malibu (county line)

Subject matter experts will provide important information on watershed and debris flow assessments, public health concerns, debris removal, and rental assistance and local resources. Staff representing these areas will be available to answer questions following the presentation.

Please be aware that everyday household toxins are present in ash and debris and can present significant health hazards. While we understand that residents are eager to begin clean-up, we ask that you wait until professional hazardous material removal services are secured. More information will be available on such services at the Town Hall meetings.

Information on recovery and assistance services can be found at www.venturacountyrecovers.org. The site also a registration function where fire victims can sign up to receive recovery updates.
