- I disagree wholly or partially with the findings numbered: FI-07

While it is convenient for the user, there is no legal requirement that all schools use the same consistent website format. SARC reports are different for every school, as every school is unique in its programs and student population. Hence, it is appropriate for some information to be identified as "NA" (not applicable) if it does not apply to the individual school.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- Recommendations numbered R-01, R-02, should not be implemented because they are not reasonable and are not warranted.

There is no legal requirement that California schools have defined standards for their websites. Most schools strive to maintain current information on their websites, however, this is not always possible due to limited budgets and personnel.

Parents and the public can easily access current school information (SARC and API) from the California Department of Education website (www.cde.gov).

- Recommendations numbered R-03, R-04 have been implemented.
